

U.S. stocks slipped over the shortened trading week as Q1 corporate reports started to roll in.

The Standard & Poor's 500 Index dropped 1.50 percent, while the Nasdaq Composite Index fell 2.62 percent. The Dow Jones Industrial Average lost 2.66 percent. The MSCI EAFE Index, which tracks developed overseas stock markets, added 4.19 percent.^{1,2}

U.S. Stocks Slide

Stocks started the four-day week with modest gains. Trade volatility subsided as several money center banks reported Q1 numbers at or above expectations.³

Stocks trended lower midweek after Federal Reserve Chair Jerome Powell expressed concern that tariffs would likely “move us further away from our goals”—including keeping inflation in check.⁴

Stocks were mixed on the week's last trading day as traders evaluated White House news that trade deals were progressing with Japan, China, and the European Union. The S&P 500 ended the day higher, but the Dow Industrials were under pressure after a large healthcare company gave a disappointing Q1 report.⁵

The Fed's Influence

Stocks were under pressure following comments from Fed Chair Powell, who expressed concern about the ability of the Fed to balance its inflation and employment goals given the current trade situation. He said, "Tariffs are highly likely to generate at least a temporary rise in inflation," and "the inflationary effects could be more persistent."⁶

These are Powell's latest remarks about tariffs. The Fed Chair made similar comments earlier this month at an event in Alexandria, Virginia.⁷

The Small Business Health Care Tax Credit

The IRS introduced the small business healthcare tax credit in an effort to extend healthcare benefits. This credit may benefit employers with fewer than 25 full-time equivalent employees, offer a qualified health plan through a Small Business Health Options Marketplace, and pay at least 50% of the employee-only health care coverage cost. There may also be some average wage requirements.

The maximum credit covers:

- 50% of premiums paid for small business employers
- 35% of premiums paid for small tax-exempt employers

The credit may also be available for two consecutive taxable years.

This information is not a substitute for individualized tax advice. Please discuss your specific tax issues with a qualified tax professional.

Games to Exercise Your Brain

Brain training is a great way to keep your mind sharp, and these fun games are designed for people of all ages. Improve your mental fitness with games like:

- Sudoku - This strategy game requires you to find the correct order of numbers 1-9 in a 3x3 grid. There can only be one of each number in each row and column.

- Crossword Puzzles - Find the correct word for each clue. The words intersect and share letters, so you have to make sure you have the right word otherwise the puzzle won't fit!
- Peak - A brain training app for your phone or tablet. It offers several different games designed to improve cognitive function and problem-solving.

Tip adapted from Very Well Mind⁹

What 10-letter word (in English) can you type using only the topmost row of letters on a computer keyboard (the Q-P row)? Hint: the first two letters of the word are next to each other in the Q-P row.

Last week's riddle: I have a horn and am almost as large as a car, but I will never honk my horn or outrun a car or truck. What might I be?

Answer: A rhinoceros.
